The Hedgelaying Competition

The South-West of England, and the Blackdown Hills in particular, is home to some of the most skilful hedgelayers in the country. Our event gives the best of them the chance to compete against each other using the traditional style which is so much a part of the local landscape. We also have sections of the competition for novice hedgelayers, who may have only recently learned and may well be taking part in their first competition. There are also slightly more experienced "intermediate" level practitioners.

The competition is the highlight of our event so come and watch and learn the art of hedgelaying from those taking part and some seasoned experts who will be on-hand during the day.

Cutting starts at about 9:30am and will finish by 3pm. Prizes and trophies for the competition will be presented in the main marquee at about 4pm.

Activities for The Whole Family...

The Neroche Woodlanders from Young Wood will be providing interesting activities for younger visitors. Make "Stick Men", learn some woodworking skills, or listen to the "oldies" talking about the creatures that live in the hedges and then make some of them out of clay.

The Cookery Competition

The cookery competition is completely free and open for anyone to enter.

Bring your entries to the main marquee before 12:45.

The judging will start at 1pm and the prize giving will be at about 3pm. There are certificates for the winners of all the classes and a trophy for the overall champion ("BHHA Masterchef 2018").
